Speaker Renner Appoints Select Committee on Hurricane Resiliency and Recovery

Florida House Speaker Paul Renner has commissioned a special committee to address hurricane relief and storm resilience. The 15-member panel of Representatives will look at the immediate needs of hard-hit regions, as well as, looking for ways to protect and repair Florida from future storms.

Rep. Jason Shoaf, a Port St. Joe Republican whose district took a direct hit from Idalia, sees immediate and long-term needs. “First and foremost, we’re focused on the safety of residents in the region. We’re getting them food and water, supplies to clean up and resources to support recovery,” he said. “Looking ahead, I think it will be important to consider how we can better support our rural EOCs. It’s clear that a Category 4 storm presents challenges that our fiscally constrained counties may not have the resources to prepare for. We can work to harden their structures, provide back up generators and strengthen communications towers to withstand the next storm so they can focus on serving their communities.”

The Select Committee on Hurricane Resiliency and Recovery will be Chaired by State Rep. Michael Grant, which will stand only through the end of 2024. Other members of the Select Committee are Rep. Adam Botana, a Bonita Springs Republican, Vice Chair; Rep. Kevin Chambliss, a Homestead Democrat, will serve as ranking member; Republican Reps. Demi Busatta Cabrera, Tiffany Esposito, Mike Giallombardo, Jim Mooney, Susan Plasencia, Spencer Roach, Jason Shoaf and Cyndi Stevenson and Democratic Reps. Hillary Cassel, Anna Eskamani, Gallop Franklin and Allison Tant.
